

Operative G T Purdy.

Oct. 18th, 1926

Operative went to the office of Mr. McCarter in Newark, as per instructions from Mr. Thompson to get the book with the account of William Stevens in it. (The cleaner's ledger).

Upon arrival there was informed that no photostat copies of certain pages in that book have been made as yet and no one in that office seemed to know much about it. Operative telephoned to Mr. Palzer and he instructed me to take it to the Studio to have it photostated.

Operative opened the package but could not find the list with the page numbers which were to be copied. Operative then called Mr. Thompson on the telephone, who advised me to return the book to New Brunswick where he would make out another list and operative did so.

Another list was made out and operative again went to Newark to have those pages photostated and later returned to New Brunswick with the book and turned it over to Mr. Thompson.

While in Newark operative went to 299 Plane Street, which is near 34 Campbell St. On the top floor at this address operative interviewed Mrs. Corbitt, who is an old resident and formerly kept a rooming house at 38 Campbell Street. Operative asked her if she remembers Janette Hilton, Mary Eisleitner or Anna King, but she was not able to recollect anyone of those names. She did state, however, that #34 Campbell Street was always a house of bad reputation as far as she could remember it and that the tenants were all women who kept disorderly houses. Negroes occupied the house up until the time it was demolished about 4 years ago. She does not remember our Subject.

Respectfully submitted:
